Ed Robertson is an award-winning author, journalist and analyst who writes and comments on pop culture, entertainment and media. His books include Thirty Years of The Rockford Files, a behind-the-scenes history of the groundbreaking TV detective series starring James Garner, Maverick: Legend of the West (“a notable work of television journalism,” according to the Nassau Herald), and The Fugitive Recaptured, which TV Guide proclaimed “the definitive book on The Fugitive.” Ed is also co-host and managing editor of TV Confidential, a radio interview show that takes listeners behind the scenes of all aspects of television. In addition, he has contributed to several television productions, including “Hollywood Maverick,” an hour-long look at the career of James Garner that airs regularly on the Biography Channel and Turner Movie Classics; “Time’s Up,” a documentary on ageism in Hollywood produced by E! Entertainment Television; and “Who Shot J.R.: The Dallas Phenomenon,” a 30-minute featurette produced by Warner Bros. Home Video.

Ed's articles on television appear in The New York Times, The Wave Magazine, Media Life Magazine and other publications. In addition, as a products consultant and writer for Columbia House he selected the best episodes and wrote the liner notes for many classic TV series released on VHS and DVD through Columbia House Video Library.

A nationally recognized analyst, Ed is frequently interviewed by journalists across the country on topics related to television history, the ongoing popularity of certain classic television series, and current trends in network programming. His quotes and opinions appear in such widely read publications as TV Guide, Television Week, FoxNews.com, ABCNews.com, USA Today, Forbes, The London Observer, The Toronto Star, The Christian Science Monitor, The San Francisco Chronicle and The Los Angeles Times. A onetime television commentator for the nationally syndicated Tony Trupiano Show (TalkAmerica Radio Network), Ed is presently a recurring guest on The Ronn Owens Program, the No. 1 show on KGO-AM/San Francisco, and one of the most listened-to radio stations in the United States. In addition, he has appeared on over 200 radio and TV programs, including Showbiz Today, CNN Headline News, First Light (Westwood One), Up All Night (BBC Radio), Talk to America (Voice of America Radio), The Joe Mazza Show (Genesis Communications Network), The CBS Late, Late Radio Show, *E!
